

A fair for all, a programme that suits each visitor

Development, fair trade, humanitarian, international cooperation, insertion and CSR: all the main international solidarity's sectors will be there in Paris, Porte de Versailles on the next 4, 5, 6 June at the 3rd Salon des Solidarités.

The "animations" part will be rich and diverse. The aim of the Fair is to be an information place for all but suited for each visitor. The animation programme will therefore include conferences that target the audience. The young, the less young, professionals, the general public, everyone will find in the programme an animation that fits them.

For instance, professionals will be able to think about the way they can better mobilize firm collaborators on solidarity projects, take part in workshops on NGO's transparency or gaining the loyalty of volunteers.

The young will understand how they can carry out a microproject, discover the different international solidarity's jobs.

For the general public the organisers offer among other things to assess the MDG (Millenium Development Goals), understand the different engagement possibilities in solidarity or think about the impact of global warming on solidarity programmes.

On the website the "My Fair" space will allow visitors to plan their visit with an animation and appointment management tool. "My Fair" also allow them to upload their resume so that NGOs can directly read it online, make appointments with NGOs at the "Recruitment Pole" and even sponsor their contacts by sending "sponsor" entry tickets.
